Thousands Of Retired Entitled To New Social Security Payments

THOUSANDS of Armed Forces men and women on the disability retired rolls will reap a big, and immediate benefit from Social Security amendments approved by Congress 19 August.

Persons on the disability rolls between the ages of 50 and 65 who are eligible for Social Security will be permitted to receive both the full SS payment and their retired pay. This means they will receive a minimum of $30 per month through next December and at least $33 per month thereafter in Social Security payments.

"Work requirements" also are relaxed, making it easier for some to qualify for disability payments.

Other members of the Armed Forces now receiving Social Security will be given increases averaging about 7%, effective 1 January 1959. Those who become eligible in future years will receive a more substantial increase.

On 1 January, Social Security taxes will go up for members of the Armed Forces on active duty. The present tax rate is 2 1/4% on the first $4200 which contributors earn. The new tax rate will be 2 1/2% on the first $4800.

This means that the present maximum tax of $94.50 will be increased to $120.

Those on the disability retired rolls, who are otherwise eligible for Social Security benefits, heretofore have been prevented from receiving Social Security checks if their retired pay was greater than the Social Security payments.

If it is less than the Social Security payment, they receive Social Security

Will, wife of Vice Admiral Will, a long-time submarine officer who commands the Military Sea Transportation Service, christens the USS Triton—largest submarine in history—during ceremonies 19 August at the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corporation, Groton, Conn. His eyes shut, former Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., who heads General Dynamics, "watches" Will in action. The Navy's senior representative at the launching was Admiral Paul Wright, USN, Cinc Atlantic and Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic. The Triton will be commanded by Capt. Edward L. Beach, USN, who was President Eisenhower's first Naval aide. (Other atomic skippers and execs, Page 11.)

Air Force Still Has Youngest Colonels; Average Officer Age Lowest In USMC

AIR Force officers are getting older, on the average, but its colonels are still the youngest in the Armed Forces.

Latest available tabulation shows that the average Air Force colonel is 43.6 years of age. In August 1955, the average was 42.9 for Air Force eagles.

The average Army colonel is 46.7; Marine, 44.6, and Navy captain, 47.16, according to Service studies.

The average age for all Marine Corps officers is 31.5, compared to the overall average of 31.92 for the Navy; 32.6 Air Force, and 33.8 Army. Three years ago, the Air Force average officer age was 30.9.

In the lieutenant colonel (commander) rank, the average ages are as follows: Army, 43.3; Navy, 40.93; Air Force, 41.6 (up from 39.9 in August 1955), and 40.2 in the Marine Corps.

In the major (lieutenant commander) rank, the averages are as follows: Army, 39.8; Navy, 37.92; Air Force, 38.9, and Marine Corps, 40.2.

The average captain (Navy lieutenant) is 34.6 years of age in the Army; 31.32 in the Navy; 34.9 in the Air Force, and 33 in the Marine Corps.

Capehart Housing May Die Next Summer; House Rejects One-Year Extension

The multi-million dollar Capehart military family housing program will die next summer unless the new Congress, which meets in January, extends the 30 June 1959 deadline.

The Senate voted to extend the program through 30 June 1960 (THE JOURNAL, 19 July) but the move failed when the House, immediately prior to adjournment, refused to pass the housing measure.

The dead proposal also would have strengthened the GI-type home-loan program for active duty members of the Armed Forces by boosting from $17,100 to $20,000 the maximum mortgage amount for Section 222 housing. Under this section, active duty Servicemen can acquire homes on terms similar to the terms provided to veterans under the GI bill.

The Defense Department pays the annual insurance premium.

The Senate-approved increase in the mortgage amount was in partial recog-

WOODWARD TROPHY. Brig. Gen. William R. Woodward (R) Deputy Commanding General of Fort Jackson, presents the Woodward Trophy for training excellence to Maj. Raymond E. Burgamy, Commanding Officer of the 7th Battalion, 2d Training Regiment. The trophy was established by General Woodward, and is awarded on the basis of scores achieved on inspections, marksmanship, physical training, proficiency tests, and overall excellence of the battalion. This is the second time the 7th Battalion has won the award and the first time any battalion has ever won it twice.

Social Security Changes Bring New Benefit For Many On Disability Retired Roll

checks for the difference.

An exception to this rule was made last year for veterans receiving Service-connected-disability payments from the Veterans Administration. They were authorized to receive full payments from both sources.

The new change in the Social Security law—which Congressional sources say will be approved by the President—extends the more liberal rule to all disabled retired members of the Armed Forces.

Unlike the other provisions of the bill which become effective on 1 January 1959, the change for those on the disability retired rolls becomes effective "for the month in which the bill is enacted and for succeeding months."

This means that if the President signs the measure before the end of August the benefit will date back to 1 August 1958. If it is not signed before September the benefit for those on the disability roll would become effective 1 September 1958.

Only those between the ages of 50 and 65 will benefit from the broader authority for disability payments. This is because disability payments under the Social Security program do not become payable until age 50, and after the beneficiary reaches age 65 there is no longer any restriction on dual payments (that is, disability payments from two Federal sources).

The work requirements that a disabled worker must meet to be eligible for cash disability benefits, and to have his benefit rights frozen while he is disabled, are changed to make it easier for a disabled worker whose disability has a gradual onset to qualify.

Under the new bill, the worker is no longer required to have had six quarters of coverage out of the 13 calendar quarters before he became disabled. The new requirements are that he be fully insured and have 20 quarters of coverage out of the 40 calendar quarters before he became disabled.

This will make it easier for some of the disability retired rolls of the Armed Forces to qualify.

Benefit increases which are slated to come in January (checks in February) for those on the regular retired rolls are set at a minimum of $3 per month and maximum of $7.50 per month. The present range is $30 to $108.50 per month for those now receiving benefits. The minimum will be increased to $33 and the maximum to $116 for those in this group.

For those who become eligible for Social Security benefits in the future—will be true of the vast majority of military families, since they did not come under full Social Security coverage until January 1957—the maximum monthly benefit will be $127 per month. The amount is in addition to retired pay.

The combined Social Security payments which a family can receive is increased from the present $200 per month to $254 per month.

Benefits also are provided for the dependent parent of a deceased worker even though there is a widow or child, who is or may become eligible for benefits. Under present law, a parent can qualify only if there is no such widow or child.

New Social Security wage credits of $160 also are provided for each month of service performed during WWII by American citizens in the armed forces of certain countries which fought against our enemies in that war.

This new section provides that American citizens who, prior to 9 December 1941, entered the active military or naval service of countries that, on 16 September 1941, were at war with a country with which the United States was at war during WWII, shall receive the same noncontributory wage credit provided for members of the U. S. Armed Forces. Wage credits of $160 are provided for each month of such service performed after 15 September 1940 and before 25 January 1947.

To qualify for this wage credit, an individual must either have been a U. S. citizen throughout the period of his active service or have lost his U. S. citizenship solely because of his entrance into such active service. He must have resided in the U. S. for at least four years during the five-year period ending on the day his entrance into such active service. He must have been domiciled in the U. S. on such day. Separation from such service must either have been (1) through discharge under conditions other than dishonorable after active service of at least 90 days or by reason of an injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty or (2) through death in such service.

The new law provides that those receiving Social Security payments may earn up to $100 per month without loss.

SPACE NAVIGATION IS 12 YRS. OLD AT AUTONETICS

When men push off for Space, they will need the absolute accuracy of inertial and stellar-inertial guidance systems to navigate in the trackless void. Working with the Air Force, Autonetics has spent 12 years bringing both to the highest state of development. Autonetics made America's first successful flight test of an inertial guidance system in 1950. Since then, more than 800 successful flight tests have demonstrated the reliability of a series of ever-improved systems. Today, Autonetics has the basic know-how and hardware America needs for Space Navigation.

RIF Pay-Plan Dies; Congress Will Act On Term Retention Bill "Early Next Year"

Higher RIF pay for Reserve officers has failed to win the approval of the 85th Congress.

But Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) of the Senate Armed Services Committee has told the Reserve Officers Association he anticipates action "early next year" on a new contract proposal for Reservists.

The House-approved increase in RIF pay, sponsored by Representative Overton Brooks (D-La) as a possible means of forestalling any large-scale reduction-in-force while Congress is away, was not considered by the Senate Committee.

Senator Russell told the ROA "it is virtually impossible to liberalize benefits on a temporary basis." He said he was "apprehensive" that if the House bill "were approved it would be more difficult to secure favorable action on a Term Retention plan."

The latter plan was submitted to the Congress too late in the session for action.

At the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill, meanwhile, rumors are growing that a new reduction-in-force is shaping up for both the Air Force and Navy.

Army Racketers Win Tourney

For the third straight year, the Army has defeated the other three Services to win the Leech Cup tennis competition.

Managed by Maj. Ralph Mendenhall, the Army team clinched the matches 20 August at the Army-Navy Country Club by defeating the Air Force 6-1. On the previous day, both teams had emerged victorious over the Marines and Navy, respectively, by identical scores.

Q & A On Social Security Amendments

ARE YOU ELIGIBLE FOR NEW BENEFITS?

You are if (1) you retired from the Armed Forces with a physical disability, (2) you are covered by Social Security, and (3) you are between the ages of 50 and 65.

HOW MUCH WILL YOU RECEIVE?

The minimum amount you will receive for the month in which the new law takes effect and for each succeeding month through December 1953 will be $30. Thereafter, the minimum will be $33. The maximum Social Security payment during the remainder of 1958 will be $108.50, and, after 1 January 1959, $116. However, it is doubtful that you will rate the top payment since the Services have been under full Social Security coverage only since January 1957. You may, nevertheless, be eligible for a rate in between the low of $33 and the high of $116.

HOW DO YOU APPLY?

If you have applied in the past and have been told that you are not eligible because your retired pay already exceeds the amount which you would receive under Social Security, it will not be necessary to reapply. The Social Security Administration automatically will certify your name for payments. If you have applied and have been told you are not eligible for payments because you lack the necessary "work requirements," you should contact your local Social Security office. These requirements have been eased. If you only recently have reached the age of 50 or are approaching that age, you should contact your local Social Security office to obtain necessary application forms.

WHERE IS THE LOCAL SS OFFICE?

Offices are located in major cities throughout the United States. If you are uncertain about the location of the office nearest you, the information can be obtained from your local post office. In the Washington, D. C. area, offices are located in the District, in Alexandria and in Silver Spring.

YORK IS DEAD

After 168 combat patrols without injury or ambush, York, a famed Army scout dog, has been accidentally killed at Ft. Benning, Ga.

A veteran of over nine years' Army service, he was cared for by the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon since retirement after the end of the Korean War. Leaving his area 13 August, the aging and deaf canine walked under the wheels of a two-and-a-half-ton truck.

Col. Harold E. Nelson, USA, Director of Services at Brooklyn, N. Y., Army Terminal, has become Director of Services for the Army Transportation Terminal Command Atlantic at the same location.

Col. Duval S. Adams, USA, former Third Army Transportation Officer, Ft. McPherson, Ga., is the new Deputy Commandant of the Army Logistics Management Center, Ft. Lee, Va. He succeeds Col. Robert H. Billingsley, who will attend the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Washington, D. C. Newest addition to the Army Logistics Management Center's recently organized Logistics Research and Doctrine Division is Col. Michael J. Reichel, who took over last week as Chief of the Systems Branch. The division is headed by another recent arrival, Col. Howard K. Eggleston.

Col. Jim H. McCoy, former Commander of Ft. Buchanan, P. R., is the new Chief of the Fourth Army G-4 Section Supply and Maintenance Division, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

Col. Julian H. Martin has returned from assignment as CofS of the Joint MAAG to Korea to become Director of the Communications Department of the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.

Col. Rollin H. Smith, recently Commander of the Army General Depot, Camp Drew, Japan, has become Chief of the Manufacturing Division, Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot.

Col. L. P. Miller, Ft. Chaffee, Ark., Adjutant General, has become CofS at that post, replacing Col. F. G. Stritzinger, USA-Ret.

Secret Report Urges SecDef To Double Navy R&D Budget For Undersea Warfare

In a secret report, now before Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy, a high-level, scientific advisory group has recommended that the Navy's research and development budget for undersea warfare be doubled.

The disclosure was made by Senator Henry Jackson (D-Wash.), Chairman of the Military Applications Subcommittee of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy.

For the current fiscal year, the Navy has specifically earmarked $74.6 million for research and development in the field of anti-submarine warfare, but officials say it is not possible to give a precise breakdown of the R&D funds which are going into the overall undersea warfare effort because the program is supported in varying degrees by other budget categories.

Senator Jackson said the secret report also indicates the Navy "now directs too little research and development effort toward major improvements in weapons systems."

The report was made by a six-member Advisory Panel on Undersea Warfare appointed by Senator Jackson to study the matter for his Subcommittee. The Senator revealed that the report was completed on 25 June and has been forwarded to Secretary McElroy and Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates.

The Panel's findings, Senator Jackson said, "underscore the inadequacy of the scope of research and development in undersea warfare in the light of the Soviet submarine threat." He said the report contains 17 findings and 12 major recommendations including "the need for at least doubling in fiscal year 1959 the Navy's research and development budget for systems immediately relevant to undersea warfare."

Although the military budget for the current fiscal year contains substantial funds for the undersea warfare program, Senator Jackson said, "It does not begin to meet the recommendations made by this distinguished advisory panel." He told the Senate, "We must face the fact that it is only a start on the kind of program required to meet the Soviet submarine threat."

Without "going into information that is classified," Senator Jackson told his colleagues that the fundamental undersea warfare problem "arises from the inability to provide an adequate detection system to locate enemy submarines." He said once this barrier "is broken through we shall be in a better position to provide for the defense of the Nation against submarine attack. The threat is a very serious one."

RADM. Lawrence R. Daspit is the Navy's Director of Undersea Warfare.

Members of the Advisory Panel on Undersea Warfare who made the report are:

Dr. Harvey Brooks, Dean of engineering and applied physics, Harvard; Dr. Ivan A. Getting, vice president, engineering and research, Raytheon Manufacturing Corp.; Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president of the University of Pennsylvania; Mr. Kenneth Mansfield, assistant to the general manager, nuclear division, Combustion Engineering, Inc.; Dr. Oskar Morgenstern, professor of economics, Princeton University, and Dr. Roger Revelle, director, Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

Doctors Brooks, Getting and Harnwell also are members of the Committee on Undersea Warfare of the National Research Council. Mr. Mansfield is former Chief of Special Projects, Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Marine G-1 Tells Plans For E-8 & E-9

Enlisted Leathernecks in all of the Corps' 412 Military Occupational Specialties will have an opportunity to advance to pay grades E-8 and E-9.

Maj. Gen. Donald M. Weller, Marine G-1, said that the ranks of 1st Sergeant and Sergeant Major have been placed in pay grades E-8 and E-9 respectively, "indicative of their position as top enlisted men in the Corps."

Billetts in pay grades E-8 and E-9 for enlisted men other than 1st Sergeants and Sergeants Major will be established "based on Marine Corps needs," he said. Proposals concerning changes in the existing rank structure and rank insignia have been delayed until the results of the recently concluded Staff Non-Commissioned Officers Symposium at Quantico are reviewed by Headquarters.

General Weller said, however, that men picked for the new E-8 and E-9 billets will be required to undergo a very careful screening and examination process. He indicated that NCO's to be advanced to pay-grade E-8 will be expected to gain the ability to supervise a number of MOS' in his Occupational Field.

At the same time, NCO's chosen for E-9 will be expected to be able to supervise men in his own and related Occupational Fields.

The General said Headquarters hopes to make the first selections to the new ranks by late Spring.

AMC, Remington Rand Teach "Brains" English

Air Force logistics people soon will be able to "talk" with their computers in English, rather than in special codes.

Using a method developed jointly by the Air Materiel Command and the Remington Rand Division of Sperry Rand, the new Air Materiel Command Automatic Compiler (AIMACO) initially will use only 30 English verbs. It can later be expanded to use a larger vocabulary.

The new device does not eliminate instruction coding for computers. It automates the coding by converting it electronically from English in a second-large-scale computer.

Scheduled for general operation within the Air Materiel Command by the end of 1958, the new device has been termed by AMC Commander General E. W. Rawlings as a "tremendous step forward in the data processing field."

He said, "It means important savings in two difficult areas: explicit definition and understanding between management and computer programmers, and relief from expensive drudgery of writing computer programs. Both of these will result in measurable dollar savings."

MEDAL FOR MAJOR WEST—Maj. Sammy A. West, USAF, who recently joined North American Air Defense Command at Ent AFB, Colo., as Director of Public Information, is congratulated on receiving the Air Force Commendation Ribbon by Maj. Gen. Marshall S. Carter, USA, NORAD CofS. Major West reported from Headquarters Pacific Air Forces, Hickam AFB, Hawaii. The citation reads in part—"This assignment required the utmost in tact and professional ability in dealing with press representatives of many nationalities and political leanings."

Non-Stop B-52 Flight Around The World Wins Mackay Trophy For 93d Bomb Wing

The Mackay Trophy for 1957 was presented 19 August to personnel of the 93d Bombardment Wing of Castle AFB, Calif., for their pioneer jet round the world non-stop record flight in three B-52s.

The trophy was presented by General Thomas D. White, Chief of Staff, to General Thomas S. Power, CInC of Strategic Air Command who accepted it on behalf of all the personnel who made the flight possible.

The record breaking flight was made by three Boeing B-52 heavy jet bombers in January 1957.

Led by the 15th Air Force Commander, Maj. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., the planes took off from Castle and flew 24,235 miles to circle the globe before landing at March AFB, Calif., 45 hours and 19 minutes later.

The bombers flew at an average speed of 543 miles per hour over many types of terrain and through all types of weather.

The citation presented to General Power said the operation was "an internationally significant air operation executed precisely as planned without incident."

The citation states that "despite the absence of advance information to the air crews or any other special preparations, this historic flight, conducted with production model aircraft, was consistently characterized by superior airmanship and exceptional flying proficiency."

Besides Generals White, Power and Old, other participants in the trophy ceremony included: Brig. Gen. William E. Eubank, Jr., former Commander of the 93d; Brig. Gen. John M. Reynolds, the 93d's present Commander; the three airplane commanders, Lt. Col. James Morris and Majors Charles W. Fink and George C. Kalebaugh, and planning officers including Col. Robert Schaefer, Lt. Col. Patrick E. Montoya and Maj. Gordon Hanaford.

The Mackay Trophy is a large silver cup mounted on a mahogany base. It was established by the late Charles H. Mackay, a member of the Aero Club of America, for annual presentation to the Air Force person, persons or organization making the "most meritorious flight of the year."

PAF Takes O'Seas Safety First; B-25 Makes Its Farewell At Bolling

Pacific Air Forces has been selected by the National Safety Council for its "Award of Honor" for the fifth consecutive year—the first overseas USAF command to be so honored.

A plaque attesting the award was presented to General Laurence S. Kuter, PAF CInC, by Mr. Will L. Tubbs, Assistant for Ground Safety, Deputy CofS, Personnel, USAF Headquarters, who came to Hickam AFB from Washington to make the presentation on behalf of the National Safety Council and to review the Pacific Air Forces ground safety program.

In making the award to General Kuter, Mr. Tubbs pointed out that a recipient competes only with himself. To be eligible he must better by a minimum of 10% his own average record for the two previous years. This makes winning harder each year.

The last B-25 bomber assigned to Bolling AFB, Washington, D. C., has been shifted to Andrews AFB, Md.

The transfer came shortly after a similar assignment of the late General of the Air Force H. H. Arnold's B-25. Both moves are part of an Air Force wide phase out of the famed North American Mitchell.

There were 57 B-25's stationed at Bolling for many years. A year ago efforts were begun to phase out these planes because of age, maintenance, lack of parts and excessive operation costs. However, the B-25's continued to be utilized and maintained at Bolling for proficiency flying.

The last B-25 was built in 1945. A/3c Edward W. Howard, Jr., Lake Charles AFB, La., has won the $100 first prize in SAC's Short Story Contest. Second prize of $75 went to A/2c John R. Swanson, Schilling AFB, Kan.; third prize, $50, was awarded to Lt. Col. Wayne P. Orr, SAC headquarters, Offutt AFB, Nebr.

The Air Force No. 1 Skeet Team recently captured the World All-Service Championship at Waterford, Mich., missing only 24 targets for a 1,226/1,250 total. M/Sgt. Harold E. Myers of Westover AFB, Mass., shattered 250 consecutive "birds" to lead the team to its title, then broke another 75 straight in a shootout to become the new World Champion.

SAC teammates of Sergeant Myers were Capt. Dyle A. Channell of Lockbourne AFB, Ohio, and Capt. Patrick O'Malley, Carswell AFB, Tex. Other members of the team were M/Sgt. William Stiles, Ent AFB, Colo., and Capt. Richard Stuart, USAF headquarters.

TAC Units Cited For Mobile Zebra

The 386th Tactical Fighter Squadron, Cannon AFB, N. M., and the 723d Tactical Fighter Squadron, Foster AFB, Tex., have been awarded the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award.

The 386th has been cited for exceptionally meritorious achievement during the period of 12 November through 6 December 1957. In particular, the squadron distinguished itself while participating in Exercise Mobile Zebra, TAC's first Composite Air Strike Force (CASF) deployment to the Far East.

This exercise, under the command of Maj. Gen. Henry Vicellio, was comprised of units from both Ninth and Twelfth Air Forces.

The 386th provided the fighter support for the CASF. In accomplishing their mission, the unit flew 44 simulated and combat profile sorties from deployment bases in the Far East. They successfully completed six over-water in-flight refuelings during the deployment and redeployment flights, and established an unofficial Japan to U. S. speed record.

The 723d also took an active part in Mobile Zebra, and, according to CASF records, maintained the enviable in-commission rate of 95.81%.

The squadron flew 80 required sorties plus five additional air defense scrambles which they themselves requested. They flew a total of 102 sorties, including 17 on interdiction, which because of reporting rules could not be totaled in the final tabulation.

SILVER REUNION FOR KELLY CLASSES

A reunion commemorating the Silver anniversary of the three classes which graduated from Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field, Tex. in 1933 is being planned, according to Col. Benton R. Baldwin, Assistant for Reserve Affairs at Headquarters Fourteenth Air Force, Robins AFB, Ga. A graduate of the 1933 October class, he originated the idea of the reunion which is planned for 24 September at Dallas, Texas, in connection with the National Convention of the Air Force Association 25-28 September.

The Fourteenth Air Force Colonel has sent letters concerning the reunion to all members of the three 1933 classes whose addresses are known. However, he is unable to locate the whereabouts of some of the 286 graduates for that year. He urges those who haven't received letters to write him at Headquarters Fourteenth Air Force whether or not they intend to be on hand for the event. He said he is attempting to compile as complete a roster as possible, including the present addresses of his fellow classmates.

Wives of the graduates are being invited to attend the reunion along with their husbands.

Understanding Surrender Could Strengthen Defenses

The Senate got itself worked into a frenzy of indignation last week-end under a misapprehension that the Air Force had authorized a study of the conditions under which the United States would surrender in a nuclear war.

This legislative frenzy, in the midst of the Washington heat and adjournment rush, was contagious. It was felt at the White House which issued a statement of denial and said that even if money were appropriated for this purpose it would not be spent.

The fact is that the Air Force had authorized a study on the factors that cause nations to surrender, with special emphasis on the surrender of Germany after World Wars I and II, the surrender of Italy, and the surrender of France to Nazi Germany.

Certainly there can be no effective understanding of war without a sound knowledge of the exact set of circumstances which will force a nation to surrender and the terms which will lead an enemy to abandon the fight.

If, in doing so, we learn something of the limits of death and destruction which we may bear and still fight, our preparations for defense can be strengthened. Our earlier studies of the point at which our own men who were prisoners of war broke under the Communists' pressure of brainwashing certainly may be expected to strengthen our ability to counteract this inhuman system.

A dangerous result of the Senate's hassle could arise from the frequent repetition there of the charge that the study covers "plans for surrender." We trust the American people sensed the ridiculousness of this.

A beneficial result is the strengthening of the determination of the Senators to supply the means to assure victory if war should come. Senator Richard B. Russell, chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, showed this thinking when he said:

"If we are not taking adequate steps, I hope and pray that we may find a way to extend our preparations, even if this involves greater expenditures, to be ready to defend this country and all that we hold dear, at all costs, rather than to make plans, however remote the contingency, to surrender."

BUMED Marks 116th Anniversary

The Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery observes the 116th anniversary of its founding on 31 August. In fact, it is the only Navy bureau still retaining its original name as established by Congress in 1842.

But the history and traditions of the medical services in the Navy antedate the establishment of the Bureau by many years. The first site for a Navy hospital was acquired in Washington, D. C., in 1821. By 1827 the Navy was underway with hospitals at Chelsea, Mass., Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and Norfolk.

The accomplishments of the Navy medical services, like those in the other Armed Services, have been enormous. During the Korean war and World War II, out of every 100 men wounded 98 recovered, as compared with World War I when only 90 out of 100 recovered or with pre-World War I when one-half or more of all wounded men died of their injuries.

Navy achievements, too, have contributed to the medical sciences, and hence to world health, in many fields. Among advancements in specialized fields developed or furthered by the Navy and adopted for use by the public are tissue and bone bank procedures for preserving arteries, skin, cartilage, and bone for future use in surgery; prosthetic devices such as the plastic glove for artificial hands, the above-knee and above-elbow artificial limbs, and the acrylic eye.

The Services and the nation are proud of the Navy's men of medicine and salute the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery on its anniversary.

Preserving The Rights Of The Individual

Congressional action in restoring the pay of two disenrolled retired naval officers is a source of considerable satisfaction to members of the Armed Services. When THE JOURNAL exposed the Navy's action in dismissing former Cdr. Robert B. Rueger and depriving his wife and children of the income he had earned through nearly 30 years of honorable service, many of our readers were astounded that such action was possible. The security of their retired income was threatened.

Now Congress has ordered the Navy to continue the pay of Mr. Rueger and of former LCdr. Fred Gillem, jr., whose pay also had been cut off. The bill directs the Secretary of Defense to come up with a uniform plan to be followed by all of the Services in cases of disenrollment. In view of the fact that the Navy was the only Service which sought to deny pay to those whom it recommended for disenrollment, and that it has since modified its stand, there seems little doubt but that the Congressional action will result in safeguarding the retired pay of all Service people.

The letter from Mr. Rueger, which we publish under "Readers' Views" on this page, is particularly gratifying to THE JOURNAL. It is recognition of our 95-year policy of defending the rights of all Service personnel.

READERS' VIEWS

Retirement In Highest Grade

The Pentagon has done it again! Reserve officers have received retirement in higher grade than that which they held on active duty, considering of course that they held a higher Reserve rank than that in which they were retired—this according to the Tracy decision.

When it comes to the old soldier who was commissioned from the ranks in time of war, and who was retired for disability in line of duty in the highest grade held, and who also holds a higher Reserve rank, the Retired Bulletin put out by The Adjutant General states that the case of the ex-enlisted man has been "taken under advisement," where it has remained for the past four months, and I believe that the decision on this is overdue.

In my case I was retired twice, once from a General hospital for disability in line of duty in the grade of Major which was my highest grade held on active duty (at the same time I held a Reserve commission as Lieutenant Colonel.) I was forced to re-enlist and be retired in my highest grade held, because at the time of my retirement Reserve officers were not entitled to hospital privileges. After having served for well over 30 years in the Regular Army, I felt that I should be entitled to much needed medical attention, and the only way I could get it was by re-enlisting. Consequently, by my having re-enlisted and being retired in my highest grade held on active duty, I apparently have forfeited my right to be retired in my higher Reserve rank which is Lieutenant Colonel.

The ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL has always been active in helping the underdog and I am sure that there are others whose status is the same as mine.

OLD-TIMER

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Likelihood of the re-institution of temporary officer promotions—particularly for the ranks of captain and major—was indicated to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week. Eligible for these promotions will be all officers on active duty—both Regulars and Reserves.

50 Years Ago—The zealous young officers of the Signal Corps are having the time of their lives these days since the Baldwin dirigible was accepted as coming within the specifications and purchased by the War Department.

90 Years Ago—Kansas is "bleeding" again from Indian arrows. The outrages on Solomon's Creek have hardly been recorded before we hear of a band of Indians on Spellman's Creek, destroying property, maiming and despoiling men and women, and practicing all the fiendish details of Indian warfare.

Integration & PL Credit

Once again, how come? The latest RA augmentation lists reflect the names of some officers who in the past, have attempted, and failed, to gain RA status under three separate RA augmentation programs. These past programs were the 1946-47 integration program, the 1948-49-50 Direct Appointment—Competitive Tour program, and the RA Warrant Officer program.

I'll say one thing, these men were certainly persistent and it paid off on their fourth attempt, and with RA promotion list credit given for all active commissioned service performed after 6 December 1941! How come?

Meanwhile back in the dust clouds of the Direct Appointment—Competitive Tour RA appointees of the 1948-49-50 RA program (the ones who broke fast and won on their first attempt) still get absolutely no promotion list credit for active commissioned service performed prior to 1 January 1948. How come?

If the powers to be, who are in a position to correct such existing injustices in the overall RA augmentation program, refuse to take any corrective action, then how come?

CAPTAIN—RA—DACT

"Heartfelt Thanks"

Throughout the years, members of the Armed Forces always have been able to turn to THE JOURNAL for authoritative information which is not readily available through other sources. This service is one of the outstanding attributes of your publication, and one which makes THE JOURNAL doubly valuable to Service families.

In the Spring of 1957, my wife, Mrs. Robert B. Rueger, in view of the fact that I had been honorably retired and separated from the Navy almost two years previously, called your office to ask if someone could read to her the exact wording of a section of Title 10, United States Code, under which it was claimed that I had just been "dropped from the rolls" of the Navy.

She was referred to a member of your staff who immediately provided the information. To her surprise, she found that the question was not treated as just another routine chore, that THE JOURNAL staff member had some questions of his own.

At first, Mrs. Rueger was reluctant to answer the questions. She had no desire to see additional publicity on a subject which already had caused her family considerable grief. However, as it became apparent that the questions were asked in an obvious attempt to be of assistance, she eventually provided the answers which went into your first article on the now well-publicized "Rueger Case."

That first story and the subsequent JOURNAL stories and editorials, as you have noted in your pages, focused

August '58 Is Assured High Place In U.S. Navy Submarine History

No peacetime month in the Navy's submarine history likely will be remembered more than August 1958, which isn't over yet.

There's speculation that before the month's end there will be new disclosures of submarine achievements.

It was on 3 August that the pioneer atomic submarine, USS Nautilus, under Cdr. William L. Anderson, voyaged from the Pacific to the Atlantic under the North Pole.

On 11 August, Cdr. James S. Calvert took the nuclear-powered USS Skate under the top of the world in the opposite direction from the Nautilus.

On 16 August, the atomic-powered Seadragon was launched at the Portsmouth, N. H., Naval Shipyard, with Mrs. Robert L. Dennison, wife of Vice Admiral Dennison, as the sponsor.

The world largest submarine, the USS Triton, powered by twin nuclear reactors, went down the ways of the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corporation in Groton, Conn., with Mrs. John M. Will, wife of Vice Admiral Will, as the sponsor.

On 25 August the Nautilus will be given a booming, welcome in New York City. On hand as the personal representative of President Eisenhower will be RAdm. Hyman G. Rickover, USN.

The failure to invite Admiral Rickover to the White House ceremonies honoring Commander Anderson on 8 August touched off a flurry of Congressional and editorial criticism. The Navy subsequently apologized to Admiral Rickover, and this week it became known that he was being considered for advancement to three-star rank, as Congress voted legislation authorizing him a special medal.

As the Nautilus receives the tribute of New York City, the Skate will be visiting ports in Scandinavia next week.

Meantime, the atomic-powered USS Seawolf long has been at sea, and there are reports that her activities during August also may add a new page to submarine history. Skipper of the Seawolf is Cdr. William B. Laning.

Navy Names Atomic Sub Skippers, Execs

THE Navy has named prospective commanding officers and executive officers for the first three Fleet Ballistic Missile submarines.

Training for assignment as Polaris sub skippers are Commanders James B. Aborn, Harold E. Shear and William E. Sims. Prospective executive officers are Lieutenant Commanders Charles D. Grojean, Patrick J. Hannifin and Joseph W. Russell.

The first SSB(N) is scheduled for commissioning in December 1959, the second March 1960. Both are being built by the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp., at Groton, Conn.

Target dates for launching and commissioning of the third Polaris sub, to be built at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Calif., have not been fixed.

To date, the Navy has assigned eight officers as commanders and seven as executive officers to nuclear-powered submarines which are either operational or which have been launched.

They are:

Submarine	Commanding Officer	Executive Officer
Nautilus	Cdr. William R. Anderson	LCdr. Frank M. Adams
Seawolf	Cdr. William B. Laning	LCdr. Charles S. Carlisle
Skate	Cdr. James F. Calvert	LCdr. John H. Nicholson
Swordfish	Cdr. Shannon D. Cramer	LCdr. Jeffrey C. Metzel
Sargo	Cdr. Daniel P. Brooks	LCdr. Roth S. Leddick
Seadragon	LCdr. George P. Steele, II	not named
Skipjack	LCdr. William W. Behrens	LCdr. Ralph H. Carnahan
Triton	Capt. Edward L. Beach	LCdr. Will M. Adams

Commander Laning was named for four-stripe rank by last year's selection board. Lieutenant Commander Behrens was named for three stripes by the FY '58 board along with Commanders Cramer and Brooks.

In addition, the Navy has sent 13 other officers to school for training as commanding officers and executive officers of atomic subs. Prospective commanding officers of SS(N)'s are Lieutenant Commanders Norman B. Bessac, Walter Dedrick, Richard E. Jortberg, Cleo N. Mitchell, Alfred J. Whittle and Lando W. Zech.

Studying for posts as executive officers are Lieutenant Commanders James Strong, Zieb D. Alford, Robert F. Hale, Charles D. Summitt and William K. Yates.

The names of Medical officers designated for duty aboard atomic-powered submarines are published on Page 14 of this issue.

Chaplain Donovan At Meade

Appointments of Chaplain (Col.) Harold F. Donovan as new Second Army Chaplain and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Edward M. Mize as his Deputy are announced at Ft. Meade, Md.

Chaplain Donovan comes to Meade from Panama, where he was the Army Caribbean Chaplain.

Chaplain Mize is a former Executive Director of the Armed Forces Chaplains Board of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel, Washington, D. C.

Atomic Sub Fleet Set For Fast Growth; First Polaris Boat Launching In May

THE Navy will have 10 nuclear-powered submarines in commission by the end of 1959, and 20 by the end of 1960, if current construction schedules hold firm.

The first Polaris-carrying atomic submarine is slated for commissioning in December 1959, the second in March 1960. Nine have been authorized.

The Navy has been given the go-ahead to build 33 atomic-propelled subs. Of this number, three are operational—Nautilus, Seawolf and Skate.

Swordfish, Sargo and Skipjack are scheduled for commissioning in September, October and November.

The Navy's seventh A-sub, Seadragon, was launched 16 August and is to be commissioned in December 1959. The eighth A-powered sub, the 5,450-ton Triton, was launched 19 August. The massive radar-picket sub—she is 447 feet long and has a 37-foot beam—joins the Fleet in May 1959.

USS Halibut, the only one of her type, will be launched in February 1959 and commissioned in December of the same year. Displacing 3,000 tons, she will be 350 feet long and have a 31-foot beam. She will be the only A-sub with the capability of firing both Regulus I and Regulus II missiles.

The tenth sub to join the Fleet, also in December 1959, will be the prototype Polaris missile carrier scheduled for launching at General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat Division Yard in Groton, Conn. The Polaris sub will displace approximately 5,600 tons, 150 tons more than the Triton. The Polaris sub, however, will be 67 feet shorter than the Triton and will have a beam four feet less than that of the Triton.

The symbols "GD," "P," "M," "N" and "I" immediately following the names of the submarines in the chart below stand for the builders. "GD" means General Dynamics Corporation, Groton, Conn.; "P" means Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, N. H.; "M" means Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Vallejo, Calif.; "N" means Newport News, Va., Shipbuilding and Drydock Co.; and "I" means Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp., Pascagoula, Miss.

Of the 11 submarines not included on the chart four are SS(N)'s, one SSG(N) and six SSB(N)'s which were authorized for construction in the Navy's Fiscal Year 1959 Shipbuilding budget. The fourth Polaris sub will be built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. and the fifth at the Portsmouth Yard.

In the column headed "Launching Date," all dates following the Triton are estimated. In the column headed "Commissioning Date" all dates after the Skate are tentative.

MILITARY MORALE WILL BE DAMAGED if Armed Forces promotions continue to become involved in political discussions. The Senate, of course, has the powerful responsibility of confirming or rejecting all Regular promotions and all general and flag officer appointments. But it's another matter when the Senate applies pressure for advancement of a particular officer, as was the case, for example, with Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, USA-Ret., and now RAdm. Hyman G. Rickover, USN.

THE SENATE PRESSURE in behalf of General Gavin is seen, in retrospect, as having been a possible factor in his retirement. Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker met the appeals from Capitol Hill by calling a news conference—one of the rare sessions with reporters he has held at the Pentagon—to make a strong point of the hopes he had that General Gavin would take an assignment that would lead to a fourth star. The Secretary made such a point about the promotion and his desire General Gavin should receive it that the advancement aspect of the problem, for the moment, was made to overshadow the fundamental fact of General Gavin's concern with what was happening to the Army.

THE LIKELIHOOD OF ADMIRAL RICKOVER'S promotion to three-star rank was stated by Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates, jr., in an interview with Mr. Lloyd Norman, military correspondent for Newsweek. The Secretary said he had requested an opinion from the Judge Advocate General on this matter.

NOTWITHSTANDING SECRETARY GATES' judicial study of the problems relating to promotion of Admiral Rickover, it will be Secretary of Defense McElroy who must decide whether or not to recommend his advancement to the President. The Defense Reorganization Plan of 1958 amended the procedures for advancement of officers to two-star rank (it was accomplished administratively). The new procedure calls for a Service Secretary to make recommendations, on which the Secretary of Defense will act after receiving the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Chances are that the procedure will be somewhat streamlined in the case of Admiral Rickover.

THERE IS SOME SPECULATION that Admiral Rickover may not be advanced to three-star rank alone. One possibility is that the Chief of the Bureau of Ships billet may be elevated to three-star status. The present Chief of BuShips is RAdm. Albert G. Mumma. Admiral Rickover, by date of rank, is second in precedence among the Navy's Engineering Duty Only officers; Admiral Mumma is No. 6. No. 1 is RAdm. Armand M. Morgan, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Ships for Ship Design and Research.

THE NAVY HAS ONLY ONE VICE ADMIRAL who is not an unrestricted line officer. He is VAdm. Edward W. Clepton, Chief of Naval Material, who is an Aviation Engineering Duty Officer (AEDO).

PRESS CONFERENCES ARE GOING OUT OF STYLE at the Pentagon. Former Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson tried to hold them about twice a month, and his successor, Secretary McElroy, indicated that he might try to maintain that schedule. Facts are, however, that Mr. McElroy's last meeting with reporters at the "Big House" was held 29 May, although he did hold conferences on 19 and 21 June during the annual Secretaries' Conference at Quantico, Va.

LIFE BEGINS AT 40 when it comes to being tapped for command of the Navy's first three Polaris fleet ballistic missile submarines. (Page 11). The prospective skippers of the boats are USNA '42 graduates. Two of the commanders are 40; the third will be 40 in December. Cdr. W. R. Anderson, USN, captain of the Nautilus, and Cdr. James F. Calvert, USN, captain of the Skate, also are USNA '42 graduates. But they began their Naval careers at earlier ages; the "Polar" skippers are both 37 years of age.

THE ARMY IS ADVISING soldiers on duty in areas where the summer uniform is worn year-around that they will not be required to purchase the Army Green until reassigned to another area where the winter uniform is prescribed, or until 1 October 1960, whichever is earlier. Most soldiers will be required to own at least one Army Green by 1 October 1958. Another exception is made for enlisted personnel in overseas areas assigned to duties which require that only civilian clothing be worn.

IT'S A GOOD BET the Army will be lenient if any of its paratroopers now in Lebanon miss the 1 October deadline for possession of at least one Green uniform.

AVERAGE AGE of airmen is going up at a faster pace than in Air Force officer ranks. (Page 1). The average airman, according to latest available Pentagon studies, is 24.6 years of age, compared to the August 1955 figure of 21.5. That's a gain of 3.1 years. Among Air Force officers, the average has gone up in the corresponding period from 30.9 to 32.6, a gain of 1.7 years.

EFFECTIVE ADMINISTRATION OF THE ARMY isn't being helped by the failure of officials to work out the top civilian command organization. The Under Secretary billet was vacant for months following the resignation of Charles C. Finucane, subsequently made Assistant Secretary of Defense. The explanation was that the Army was waiting to see what would happen to the Reorganization Bill.

ENACTMENT OF THE REORGANIZATION PLAN now is followed by the designation of Assistant Secretary Hugh M. Milton to be the Under Secretary. He has been serving as Assistant Secretary for Manpower, Personnel and Reserve Forces. But no replacement was named for General Milton, the explanation being that for the present he will continue to be responsible for manpower matters while serving as Under Secretary.

ARMY SPOKESMEN REPORT that a study is being made of the entire organization of the Secretariat. Army members can only hope that the study can be completed expeditiously, for there is no question that personnel problems demand full-time attention, such as General Milton has been giving to them. One possibility is that the Army will decide to consolidate the Civil-Military Affairs responsibilities, now under Assistant Secretary Dewey Short, with the Financial Management activities, under Assistant Secretary George H. Roderick. One of these Assistant Secretaries then could replace General Milton.

BIGGEST BENEFIT to go to any single group under the new Social Security amendments is awarded to those with disability retirements (Page 1). Military men and women on the disability retirement rolls will be able to receive both their retirement checks and, if they are eligible, Social Security payments of $30 a month and more. Eligibility rules have been eased.

VINCENT AFB at Yuma, Ariz., will be transferred to the Navy Department 1 January and will be redesignated Marine Corps Auxiliary Air Station, Yuma. It will replace the Marine Auxiliary Air Station at Mojave, Calif., which will be inactivated 1 January. The Yuma base will be used by squadrons of the Third Marine Aircraft Wing, inclose those at El Toro, Calif.

A FRENCH ADMIRAL is going to be a key speaker at the Association of the U.S. Army convention 20-22 October in Washington, D. C. He is Admiral Antoine M. Sala, Naval Deputy for NATO. The Association is certain to give much attention to the diminishing size of the Army and the threat of further manpower cuts.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of 18 August uses 17 pages to list names of retired personnel of the U. S. Government who have been awarded decorations and medals by foreign governments. Before adjournment, Congress approved acceptance of the awards, which have been held in storage by the State Department.

ANALYSIS OF THE DECORATIONS LIST shows that it includes 413 retired members of the Armed Forces. Each of the Services is listed separately, with recipients in each Service shown according to rank—with one notable exception. The Army list begins with: "Truman, Harry S., Col." He retired 31 January 1953 and received the Centennial Medal from the Government of Liberia as a "token of good will."

THE LARGEST NUMBER OF MEDALS go to former CNO Robert B. Carney (10) and former JCS Chairman Arthur W. Radford (9). In third place, with eight each, are former Army CofS Matthew B. Ridgway and Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, military aide to former President (Colonel) Truman. Movie actor Douglas E. Fairbanks, jr., a WWII Naval Reserve captain, and Air Force Brig. Gen. Emil C. Kiel, are next with seven each.

ARCTIC EXPLORER Bernt Balchen and Col. Charlie Short, USAF-Ret. (brother of Assistant Secretary of the Army Dewey Short) are on the list, along with three Coast Guard officers: RAdm. George E. McCabe, Capt. Donald G. Jacobs and LCdr. William Lieberman.

ONLY FOUR ENLISTED MEN'S NAMES are included in the long list. They are Master Sergeants: Charles A. Bottomstone and John T. Currie (Army) and William S. Richardson and Raymond Finn (Air Force). Sergeant Finn was honored by China; the other three Sergeants by Greece.

TWO MARINE GENERALS, two lieutenant generals, five brigadier generals, two colonels and one lieutenant colonel represent the Leathernecks on the list. They include former Marine Commandant Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., now Chairman of the Inter-American Defense Board, who received decorations from Argentina, Brazil and Spain, and Lt. Gen. Lewis B. "Chesty" Puller, Korean hero.

COL. ALLEN W. STEPHENS, USAF, who filled a key staff billet in the work of the Cordier Committee, spent long hours at the Pentagon on projects related to the need for increased retention of critical specialists, such as missile experts. The colonel's work will have a personal payoff. He has been given command of the 394th Missile Squadron at Cooke AFB, Calif., which will train airmen for duty with Atlas ICBM units.

Nautilus Doctor Heads For New Assignment, Others Named For A-Sub Medical Posts

The atomic-powered submarine Nautilus is losing its doctor.

Cdr. Richard F. Dobbins, who made the historic voyage under the North Pole, will leave the Nautilus to join Submarine Squadron 10 at New London, Conn.

The Navy said this week that his replacement has not been named.

At present, there are 13 medical officers either assigned to atomic submarines, or in training for such assignments.

In addition to Commander Dobbins, medical officers aboard operational atomic submarines include: LCdr. John H. Ebersole, Seawolf Medical Officer, who was previously assigned to the Nautilus; and Lt. Richard T. Arnest, on the Skate.

Other doctors who have received assignments to nuclear subs are: Cdr. Andrew McKane III, Sworfish; LCdr. John H. Schulte, Sargo; and Lt. Quentin J. McGrew, Skipjack.

Cdr. James E. Stark, now in training at the Atomic Energy Commission's Schenectady, N. Y., Operations Office, will report to the nation's largest nuclear sub, the U.S.S. Triton, in November.

Doctors in training for nuclear sub billets at the AEC's Idaho Branch Office of the Pittsburgh Naval Reactors Operation Office, Idaho Falls, are: LCdr. Ben K. Hastings, Lt. Thomas E. McCarthy, and Lt. Lewis H. Seaton. LCdr. Fred W. Richardson is training at the AEC's Schenectady Office.

Lieutenants Thomas S. Dunn and John H. Baker will begin studies at the University of Rochester in September.

Of the 13 doctors slated for nuclear sub assignments, Navy officials say only six have fully qualified as Submarine Medical Officers by writing a thesis in submarine medicine and passing the necessary exams and boards. These six officers, who are entitled to wear the dolphin submarine emblem, are: Commanders Stark and Kane; Lieutenant Commanders Ebersole, Richardson and Schulte; and Lieutenant Arnest.

All doctors slated for nuclear sub duty, with the exception of Lieutenant Baker, have completed Submarine School. Lieutenant Baker will train at the school after he finishes his courses at Rochester University.

House Group Attacks Navy-AF Rocket Launcher Procurement; Urges Changes

"Markedly poor" planning has been charged to the Navy and Air Force in the field of airborne rocket launcher procurement.

The House Government Operations Committee, in a report released on 18 August (House Report No. 2660) charges that "There is now, and has been for some years, an imbalance between rockets and launchers, impairing aircraft firepower capabilities in an emergency."

The Committee also said the "technical problems and production difficulties encountered by contractors indicate that neither the Navy nor the Air Force has developed specifications firm enough to fully justify advertised bidding in this procurement area."

The Committee revealed that it "will request the Comptroller General to examine certain phases of the advertised procurements to determine whether Government expenditures in assisting the contractors were properly incurred and whether partial termination costs on an existing Air Force contract are fair and reasonable."

The Committee said the Secretary of Defense should direct Pentagon agencies to review the report carefully "with a view toward effecting the following actions:

"1. Establish firm requirements for rocket launchers in the Navy and the Air Force.

"2. Integrate procurement of launchers and rockets or other related items.

"3. Coordinate Navy and Air Force rocket launcher requirements and take steps to assure production sources adequate to fulfill these requirements.

"4. Coordinate and possibly consolidate the development and procurement programs of both services in this field.

"5. By cooperative arrangement with the Small Business Administration, prevent subcontracting of end items or major components by small business to big business in cases where procurements have been reserved exclusively for small business.

"6. Stipulate clearly in requests for small business proposals the price limitations and other conditions under which bids will be considered and contracts awarded.

"7. Prohibit 100 per cent subcontracting or other arrangements which tend to effect the transfer of contracts to other parties, except under special circumstances authorized by law and clearly stipulated in advance of contract awards.

"8. Include in the covenant against the contingent fees a warranty that the contractor will not transfer the contract in whole or in part by subcontract or other arrangement in consideration of fees or commissions paid for such transfer.

"9. Make explicit in contract documents the rights of the Government to reproduce and distribute drawings for purposes of subsequent procurement.

"10. Invite bid discounts for prompt Government payment only for such periods of time as payments are administratively feasible, and consider eliminating the 10-day period for discount offers.

"11. Require Department of Defense employees who desire to bid on or enter into contracts with the Government to obtain formal permission from the employing agency, and only after special justification is presented for seeking or accepting such contracts.

"12. Take such other measures to improve procurement procedures and administrative practices as are warranted by the findings, recommendations, facts, and observations presented in this report."

O'Seas School Plan Is Shelved

LEGISLATION to provide better conditions for teachers of thousands of Service school children overseas has been set aside until next year.

Early in the year, Congress received a Defense Department measure that would provide teacher salary and leave benefits similar to those in many areas of the United States for Army, Navy, and Air Force teachers overseas.

But nothing was done on this legislation until Miss Mary Hoague, Past President of the Overseas Teachers Association, arrived from London last month to secure the backing of key members of Congress.

As a result of her efforts, whirlwind hearings were held in the Senate, and the bill was passed 4 August.

A House Post Office and Civil Service Subcommittee raised a number of questions for Pentagon officials during a one-day hearing.

After posing the questions, the Subcommittee terminated its work on the school teacher bill, even though the answers were provided by the Pentagon. Thus, there can be no action now before next January at the earliest.

Congress Erases Debt For Army And Air Force Families In Hawaii

ARMY and Air Force families will not be forced to pay back more than $12,000 for transportation of household goods to Hawaii in 1952, '53 and '54.

Congress has approved legislation (HR 9371) validating shipments on which the Government has been attempting to collect $12,631.43. Of this amount, $341.40 has been collected, but will be refunded to the families concerned.

The newly-approved measure, which has been pending for more than a year, corrects a situation which resulted from a mix-up in regulations governing payments for the transportation of household goods during the period 31 August 1952 and 1 February 1954.

Joint travel regulations in effect at the time authorized transportation of families at Government expense to Territories and Possessions of the U. S. when members of the Services were transferred to restricted areas where families could not travel, provided the Territory or Possession was the "home of record" of the family members.

However, the regulations failed to authorize shipment of household goods. After such shipments had been authorized under separate instructions, it was subsequently determined that members whose household goods were so transported would have to reimburse the Government.

The measure has gone to the White House for the President's signature.

Spartan Youth Program Urged At Ft. Bragg

The National Guard and Reserve would take the lead in developing a youth fitness and citizenship program under a plan recently proposed at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

As a pilot project, the plan calls for the creation of youth units under National Guard and Reserve leadership in North Carolina to engage in hiking, shooting and other forms of athletics, to build citizenship and to create an awareness of the benefits of life in a democracy.

Plans envision the use of National Guard armories and high school gyms as centers for the movement. Regular Army, Navy and Air Force units would participate in the project.

The proposal climaxed a recent seminar held at Bragg under sponsorship of the 310th Logistical command, a Reserve organization commanded by Brig. Gen. J. T. Roberts. Maj. Gen. Capus Waynick, NGUS, North Carolina Adjutant General, told the assemblage of 250 officers that the plan had the tentative backing of Governor Luther Hodges.

The meeting also heard Dr. Frank Barnett, Director of Research of the Richardson Foundation, New York, urge adoption of the program "to turn North Carolina into a model of ancient Sparta."

Dr. Barnett also urged the toughening of American thought and physical well-being through combined efforts of church, school and home to inculcate basic understandings of patriotism, democracy and free enterprise. "What use is it to develop weapons," he said, "if the willingness to use them in defense is wiped out?"

Guests of honor at the meeting included: Maj. Gen. Robert F. Sink, XVIII Airborne Corps and Bragg Commander; Maj. Gen. Rinaldo Van Brunt, Second Army; Maj. Gen. Ralph Palladino, Chief of Army Reserve and ROTC; Ben Fridge, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force; Brig. Gen. Felix Vidal, Deputy Air Chief of Staff for Reserve Forces; RADM. John McN. Army, Air Force Overpay $40 Million To Service Families In Two Years

Confronted with over $40 millions in overpayments to Army and Air Force personnel and their families in Fiscal Years 1956 and 1957, the Comptroller General called upon both Services to provide better training for finance personnel.

The Comptroller is investigating Navy audit operations for fiscal '57, with a report expected at a later date.

"We attribute these overpayments," the Comptroller told Congress in reports on Army and Air Force audits, "primarily to weaknesses in the administration of military pay and allowances. . . . We are recommending that adequate training be given to personnel responsible for finance operations and that they be made more aware of their responsibilities."

In fiscal year 1957, the Comptroller pointed out, Army disbursing officers paid out almost $12.5 million more in pay and allowances than was authorized by law. During the same period the Air Force made overpayments of almost $6.5 million.

Singled out by the Comptroller for special consideration were overpayments by both Services for mustering out pay, unauthorized family separation allowance, reenlistment bonus, and improper payment for family travel.

A word of cheer for Service families who received "family separation allowances" and are now threatened with repayment was sounded in the audit reports. The Pentagon, the Comptroller said, may ask for new legislation to wipe out any debts incurred by the erroneous payments.

The "family separation allowances" were authorized by Service Secretaries under the Career Compensation Act of 1949 to personnel overseas who do not receive Government quarters for their families or who are separated from them. These payments, which continued from 1 March through 30 June 1956, were later declared illegal by the Comptroller, and action was begun to recover them.

In addition to recommending better training for military finance personnel, the Comptroller suggested that the Services:

"Instill in finance personnel a greater awareness of their responsibilities for determining that payments are made in compliance with laws, regulations and decisions of the Comptroller General;" and

"Assure that personnel of other organizational units are aware of their responsibilities if they furnish or certify information which will affect payments to military personnel."

TERACRUZER AWARD

The Four Wheel Drive Auto Co. of Clintonville, Wis., has been awarded a $1 million prime contract by the Air Force for missile-carrying Teracruzers. The firm previously has produced 163 of these vehicles to transport Martin Matador missiles.

The Teracruzer is a "pillow-tired" eight-wheel drive vehicle designed to carry military cargo and troops over any type of terrain.

The Teracruzers in this new order will be part of the Tactical Air Command's MACE weapons system. Delivery is scheduled within the next year.

Financial Tangles. which was published by the American Institute for Economic Research. Having made his home at La Jolla since 1941, Colonel Masteller played a prominent role in the civic and cultural life of that community, where he served as Treasurer of the La Jolla Art Center until his death.

Marine Corps Buys 42 Assault Service Stations

The Marine Corps has awarded a $3 million contract to the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company for production of 13 bulk fuel handling systems.

Developed by the Marine Corps, the system will enable Leathernecks to service attacking planes and vehicles close to the line.

Each of the 13 systems is made up of about 42 collapsible, 10,000 gallon, rubberized-fabric tanks, 5½ miles of hose, hose connections, separators and pumps. One system will make available 420,000 gallons of fuel.

Each tank weighs about 600 pounds—less than one-tenth the weight of a steel tank of the same capacity—and can be folded into a compact package for transportation.

Once a beachhead is secured, Marines will begin assembling the system. Two main tanks, a pump and other equipment will be set up and fuel will be pumped directly to the beachhead from an off shore tanker. As the fight progresses inland, connections will be made to "farm" tanks.

When in use, a tank is pillow-shaped, 40 feet long, 11 feet wide and four feet high.

The contract calls for 546 tanks and 71½ miles of connecting hose.

The systems will be manufactured at Firestone's Defense Products Plant in Magnolia, Ark.

Army Engineers Test Aluminum Bridge Trusses

The Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, Ft. Belvoir, Va., are conducting structural tests on four full-size experimental all-welded aluminum truss panels for a military tactical bridge.

Believed to be the first of their kind in the United States, these truss panels have been fabricated by Aluminum Company of America from one of the new non-heat-treatable, weldable aluminum alloys.

It is anticipated that the truss components will support a 60-ton tank load on approximately a 90-foot span. In order to obtain this capacity in the past, when high strength, heat-treatable aluminum alloys were used, it was necessary to build-up basic panel members by neutral axis welding. The panel components were then joined by riveting or bolting.

Since military bridge equipment is required to be portable and rapidly constructed, the bridge trusses are divided into light-weight, simply connected panels. The basic features of the experimental panels are: length—16 ft. 2 in.; height—7 ft. 7 in.; and fabricated weight—920 pounds. All of the members of the truss panels were fabricated from aluminum alloy 5456-H321 plate stock which has an ultimate tensile strength of 42,000 psi. The upper and lower chords are box sections, and the diagonal and vertical members are built-up wide flange sections. All of the welding was accomplished by the inert gas-shielded metal arc method using consumable electrode.

WAVES Test Replacement For Gray "Gunny-Sack"

A new uniform for WAVES and Navy Nurses will be adopted in time for wear next Summer.

WAVES have long contended that the present gray Summer work dress—some facetiously refer to it as a "gunny-sack"—is not neat-appearing and is too difficult to launder.

Two new fashions are being listed.

The first style consists of a one-piece dress worn with a non-removable jacket without lapels. The second outfit is made up of a two-piece dress and removable jacket with lapels. Both styles are tailored of a lightweight, cotton-dacron material with pin stripes so close together that the cloth appears to be a solid pastel blue.

WAVES participating in the wear-test have been given both types of uniform. There are 68 test uniforms being worn in various hot-weather areas.

When the WAVES decide which style they prefer, they will submit their decision to the Permanent Naval Uniform Board which will give its approval.

BAT Tractors Developed By Ft. Belvoir Labs

Two air-transportable BAT's, ballastable all-purpose tractors, are being developed at the Army Engineer Research and Development Laboratories, Ft. Belvoir, Va.

The initial version, now being built by Barnes-Reinecke, Inc., Chicago, has detachable front and rear sections to permit insertions of different body configurations, such as cargo bodies, shop units, liquid transporters, earth augers and cranes. When ballasted with dirt, the tractor can perform dozing and prime moving operations.

Second BAT model, an all-purpose ballastable crawler, will have improved mobility with a front-loading ballastable compartment which can be used for transport of pod-type loads such as shop units and servicing and utility equipment. It is being designed and built by International Harvester, Melrose Park, Ill.

COAST GUARD RAISES HERCULES ORDERS

The Coast Guard and Lockheed Aircraft's Georgia Division plant at Marietta have signed a contract for two more Hercules four-engine transports. Two had been ordered previously.

The Coast Guard has designated the airplane as an SC-130B and will use the versatile Hercules for search, rescue and other missions.

Lockheed officials said the advanced type SC-130B prop-jets are scheduled for delivery in November and December 1959 and January and March 1960.

The Coast Guard eventually plans to utilize a total of 14 Hercules aircraft, which are in production for the Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force, and are being offered commercial airlines as global air freighters.

For reasons of economy, contracts awarded Lockheed by the Coast Guard are being added to the Air Force order for C-130B Hercules transports.

Modifications to adapt the Hercules "B" prop-jet to Coast Guard missions will be minor. They include rearrangement of the cockpit layout to add a radio operator's station and accommodations for an "on-scene" commander. Two search-observer seats and clear vision panels at rear paratroop doors will be used for low-level search and air rescue operations.

Air Force Pacific Logistics Support Shift

Increased Stateside support for the Air Force's Pacific logistics program will see drastic reductions in the operations of the Northern and Southern Air Materiel Areas Pacific.

Implemented under a new "Improved Pacific Logistics Program," the plan will reduce to a "residual minimum" depot functions and operations at the Southern Air Materiel Area, Pacific by 31 December 1959, and at the Northern AMA Pacific by 30 June 1960.

Air Materiel Command officials defined "residual minimum" as those logistic functions or operations that could not readily be absorbed by other Pacific area activities or transferred to the United States and which are essential to the successful application of advanced logistics concepts.

For supply, all Pacific AMC customers will be supported directly from the U. S. Stocks at the two Pacific Air Materiel Areas will be consumed by establishment of a base supply at Clark AFB in the Philippines and at Tachikawa, Japan, increasing base stock levels and country stock levels in the Military Assistance Program, and by intensified base and depot excess disposal programs.

Vought Vocabulary

Cru·sad'er III: Navy's new automated fighter is a flying missile base

Automation multiplies the efficiency of the pilot of Chance Vought's new all-weather fighter.

Its armament battery of guided missiles puts him in command of a missile base that flies at more than twice the speed of sound. Its advanced equipment provides him electronic vision, instant reactions. Freed by automation from cockpit routine, he focuses on strategy. Multiplied in power and judgment, the Navy pilot of this Crusader III becomes a multiple man.

One of the most versatile weapon systems ever devised for America's defense, this new interceptor can fight at altitudes above 95 percent of the earth's atmosphere. It will operate—under all weather conditions—from carrier decks or advanced airbases.

Crusader III will give the U. S. Navy the lowest cost, all-weather Mach 2-plus fighter available.

House And Senate OK "Rueger Bill"

Legislation restoring the retired pay of former Navy Cdr. Robert B. Rueger has been approved by the House and Senate and was sent to the White House for the President's signature.

The measure, as re-written by the Senate Armed Services Committee was approved by the Senate on 14 August and accepted by the House on 15 August. It restores the retired pay of former Cdr. Fred Gillem, jr., and entitles both officers to retroactive pay dating back to the date on which they were dropped from the rolls.

In considering the bill, the Senate committee deferred a decision on most of the features of the measure previously approved by the House until it receives defense Department recommendations on a uniform disenrollment policy for all of the Services.

The earlier House bill, in addition to aiding Rueger and Gillem, protected the pay of all retired military personnel dropped from the rolls as a result of criminal conviction by civilian courts, with the exception of those convicted of crimes against the Nation.

The Army Corps of Engineers is seeking qualified career enlisted men in the grades E4 and E5 as trainees in its nuclear power program.

While the Corps is desirous of obtaining applicants with backgrounds in mechanical or electrical machinery or electronic equipment, a limited background in these skills would not be disqualifying if an applicant is otherwise well qualified and anxious to follow a career in the nuclear power field.

Applications for enrollment in the Nuclear Power Plant Operator's course scheduled to commence about 15 January 1959, at Ft. Belvoir, Va., must be submitted to the Office of the Chief of Army Engineers, Washington, D. C., by 1 September.

Qualifications necessary to enter this training are outlined in Department of the Army Circular 621-18, date 5 June 1958.

Caterpillar DW20 Tractor with No. 456 LOWBOWL Scraper is pushloaded by a D9 Tractor equipped with a pushcup. With eight other DW20s it is working on construction of runways, taxiways and other facilities at Bergstrom Air Force Base, near Austin, Texas. Altogether, the fast-moving DW20s are getting up to 20,500 cu. yd. in a 20-hour working day on hauls of 1 to 2 1/2 miles round trip.

Job report on Bergstrom A.F.B. construction

Near Austin, Texas, the H. B. Zachry Company is building runways, taxiways and other facilities for the new Bergstrom Air Force Base. This is a big operation—2,370,000 cu. yd. of excavation. In addition, it calls for 300,000 yd. of select base material and 503,000 yd. of concrete pavement. Runways are 12,250 ft. long, 300 ft. wide.

Work started in April, 1957, and is being handled by nine Caterpillar DW20 Tractors with No. 456

LOWBOWL Scrapers, two Cat D9 Tractors, six D8s, two D7s and seven No. 12 Motor Graders.

The DW20s are getting up to 20,500 cu. yd. in a 20-hour working day. Rough material, too—clay, limestone conglomerate, shale and black gumbo. Round-trip hauls have varied from 1 to 2 1/2 miles.

Powered by a Cat Diesel Engine, the four-wheel DW20-No. 456 rig has the power and stability for big-volume hauling at high speeds. It's rated at 18 cu. yd. struck, 25 heaped. Ten-speed transmission offers a selection of speeds to handle any job. Easy to see why the Caterpillar DW20-No. 456 wheel unit has a proved economy record!
